wellness center: perspective view

"Once you cross the threshold, almost like a modern monastery, the building withdraws and reveals the order and tranquility of the internal courtyard, enclosed by the main volumes and connecting structures. In the dry garden, covered with stones, two deciduous trees have been placed, around which the entire courtyard space revolves. The planimetric layout is defined by multiple views; optical cones envelop the spaces in a continuous exchange of views between inside and outside. A few materials were used in the construction, which, skilfully combined, characterize the building; the rough beauty of the concrete and the natural beauty of the wood contrasts with the lightness of the aluminum and the transparency of the glass."
